

Watching TV

Alan was at home. He watched a cartoon after school at four o'clock in the afternoon. He thought cartoons were interesting.

Fifteen minutes later, his little sister Amy came home. She wanted to watch sports programme because she thought it was exciting.

Later, they talked about what programmes they wanted to watch. Alan said, 'I don't want to watch sports programmes because they are boring.' Amy replied, 'But I want to watch them. I don't like cartoons because they are silly.'

In the end, Amy agreed to watch cartoons. Then they watched cartoons together happily.