

Watching TV

Alan was at home. He wanted to watch cartoons because he thought cartoons were funny. After fifteen minutes, his big sister, Amy, came home. Amy said, “I want to watch sports programmes because they are exciting.” Alan said, “I don’t want to watch sports programmes. They are very boring.” Amy said angrily, “I don’t want to watch cartoons. They are silly!”

After a while, Alan said, “We can watch both game shows and cookery programmes.” Amy said, “Okay! Let’s watch cookery programmes together.”

Then, Mum and Dad came home. They said, “Look! We bought a new TV!” Alan and Amy said, “Now we can watch what we like.” They felt happy.