

Story

Last Friday, something happened when I was at home.

I was doing my homework at home peacefully while my Mum was washing the dishes in the kitchen. My cat, Fay, was on the floor.

After a while, my Mum felt cold and asked me to close the windows. So I got up and turned to the windows to close them. The cat was curious about what I was doing so the cat did not hesitate to jump on the table.

After when I closed the windows, I saw the glass of water was knocked over. The cat knocked over the glass of water, spilling it. My exercise book is currently soaked in water. Both I and my Mum were angry.

I was very sad. We had no hairdryers to dry the exercise book. But luckily, Mum put my exercise book under the ceiling fan on a table and turned the fan on. I punished Fay in a cage for a day to behave itself.
